Administrative Note

The Catholic Information Society of Milwaukee was founded in 1949 as a branch of the Convert Makers of America, with Fr. Edward Morgan as its spiritual director. The Society focused on distribution of Catholic materials in racks across the Milwaukee area and at the annual State Fair. In 1956, the Society founded the Catholic Information Center in downtown Milwaukee, at which time Fr. Morgan retired. Fr. Charles J. Mehok, S.J. was assigned as spiritual director, and eventually assumed the role of executive director. Mehok conducted convert classes at the Information Center, which experienced rapid growth in the 1960s. Despite its all-volunteer staff, the center faced constant financial worries. To remedy this, the Information Center purchased the Catholic Publishing arm of Bruce Publishing in 1958 and expanded it quickly to distribute Catholic books and pamphlets throughout Wisconsin and across the country. The book and pamphlet service outgrew the physical space of the Center several times in the early 1960s, and it was sold in 1969 due to lack of space.

Following Vatican II, Mehok adjusted his educational aims to include keeping Catholics educated about their faith as well as making new converts. In 1970, the Catholic Information Society absorbed the Milwaukee chapter of the Thomist Association after the national organization disbanded. Mehok taught informational classes at parishes across the Archdiocese to increase the profile of the Center, and began donating his pay from the university classes he taught to help the Center meet its costs. The Center moved from its storefront location at 616 W. Wisconsin to an upper office at 633 W Wisconsin in 1988, and to a smaller office in the same building in 1996. The Catholic Information Center closed in 2000.
